Week ending 26 April 2019

Year 5 in literacy have completed our work on fairy tales, using powerful language to express the feelings on characters in a narrative.

In Maths we have been focusing on place value – understanding how to read and write numbers up to seven digits (easier said than done: i.e. 7027071 = Seven million, twenty-seven thousand and seventy-one), and completing mental calculations and counting forwards and backwards using such very large numbers.

In History, we have begin to explore our new topic of The Victorian Age – with an initial focus on life in the workhouses. We have explored the life of Dr Barnardo, and his contribution to children's care, education and rights.
